

The Trump Transition knowledge hub gathers insights, analysis and updates on key policy, regulatory and legislative developments during the Trump administration transition period. Designed for in-house counsel and corporate executives, this resource provides timely insights on developments in energy, environmental, tax, trade and technology policy, helping you make informed business decisions in a rapidly changing legislative and regulatory climate.

Executive Orders

The Trump Administration's Day-One Executive Actions: Impacts on Energy and Environmental Policy and More

UPDATE

President Trump began his second term with a blitz of executive orders. Bracewell's Policy Resolution Group weighs in.

Energy and Environmental Policy

Legal Pitfalls Could Trouble Trump's Executive Actions

MEDIA MENTIONS

Uncertainty Abounds: IRA Clean Energy Incentives Await Fate

MEDIA MENTIONS

Sources Say Judges' Questions May Preview Trump's GHG Rule Rollback

MEDIA MENTIONS

The absence of Chevron deference may limit some of President Donald Trump's ambitions to reverse Biden administration rulings.

BRACEWELL

The fate of the Inflation Reduction Act remains uncertain as the incoming Trump administration prepares to take office.

Recent DC Circuit oral arguments are offering an early indicator of how the Trump administration might justify scaling back the Biden EPA's greenhouse gas standards for power plants.

The Julie Mason Show: Maisano on the Climate, Trump's Day One Energy Agenda and Last-Minute Biden Energy Issues

MEDIA MENTIONS

Trump Win Puts Endangerment Finding in the Crosshairs

MEDIA MENTIONS

Trump's Energy Agenda in the Next Administration: A Closer Look

MEDIA MENTIONS

Frank Maisano discusses President-elect Trump's cabinet selections, the transition from climate to energy policies and more.

The new Trump administration is unlikely to proceed with repealing the landmark ruling that greenhouse gases threaten public health.

Trump's second-term energy agenda emphasizes energy independence, economic growth and deregulation, with a focus on increasing domestic production and streamlining processes.

US Hydrogen Strategy Uncertain Under Trump

MEDIA MENTIONS

PRG Pulse 2024: Post Election Analysis: Energy and Environmental Policy

UPDATE

PRG Pulse 2024 Post-Election Analysis: Energy Tax Policy

UPDATE

It will be difficult for President-elect Trump to potentially roll back subsidies that have already been allocated to clean energy projects such as hydrogen.

A second Trump administration is expected to prioritize "energy dominance," focusing on expanding oil and gas, reducing regulations, and increasing drilling, especially with Republican-led committees in Congress likely supportive of these goals.

The future of the Inflation Reduction Act (IRA), signed in 2022 to boost US clean energy with new tax incentives, hangs in the balance.

How Far Will Trump Go? Renewable Energy Industry Braces for 'Whipsaw'

MEDIA MENTIONS

Here's How EPA's Climate Rules Will Change Under Trump

MEDIA MENTIONS

Trump's Day 1 Climate Plans – In His Own Words

MEDIA MENTIONS

In pursuit of lofty climate initiatives, the renewable energy industry has benefited from a “manufacturing renaissance” under the Biden administration, but proponents have often wondered what might happen in the event of a second Trump presidency.

President-elect Trump could cut regulations on power plants while softening other rules that enjoy industry support.

President-elect Trump is expected to move quickly to eradicate the Biden’s administration’s climate policy.

Pulse Check: Hydrogen

VIDEO

Pulse Check: Nuclear

VIDEO

Pulse Check: Carbon Markets and CCUS

VIDEO

Personnel is policy that is going to dictate, in part, what happens with the Department of Energy’s hydrogen hub program and the 45V hydrogen production tax credit.

Bipartisan cooperation on nuclear energy is likely to persist into the second Trump administration.

The question remains whether President-elect Trump can be swayed to support voluntary carbon markets as a way to strengthen our competitive stance in the international trade world

Pulse Check: Wind

VIDEO

The Trump administration may have a hard time overlooking the benefits of offshore wind as a potential energy resource.

Manufacturing

Tariff Policy and US Manufacturing With WSJ’s Bob Tita

PODCAST

Trump’s Early Tariff Pitch Raises Questions on Energy Impacts, Exemptions

MEDIA MENTIONS

Crude Import Tariffs, Exemptions Introduce Uncertainty to US Oil Industry: Experts

MEDIA MENTIONS

BRACEWELL

Josh Zive, Paul Nathanson and Caitlin Sickles talk with Bob Vita about the potential impact of new tariffs on US manufacturing.

On November 25, President-elect Donald Trump promised to impose 25 percent tariffs on all products imported from Canada and Mexico, as well as 10 percent tariffs on goods entering from China, in a move that could have significant implications for the energy sector.

The US oil industry faces an uncertain future should President-elect Trump following through on blanket tariffs on imports from Canada and Mexico.

Trump's Early Tariff Pitch Raises Questions on Energy Impacts, Exemptions

MEDIA MENTIONS

Pulse Check: Trade and Manufacturing

VIDEO

Pulse Check: Manufacturing and the CPSC

VIDEO

Trump's proposed tariffs on Mexico and Canada could be enforced through broad presidential powers to push for action on immigration and drug trafficking.

With Donald Trump's re-election, we are likely to see an active few months and years when it comes to changes in tariffs and other parts of trade policy.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission's budget will likely decrease, further limiting its ability to take regulatory action.

Markets Look Past Trump Tariffs, But They Could Be 'Life or Death' for Some Companies

MEDIA MENTIONS

Stocks are soaring despite the threat of heavy tariffs.

Post-Election Analysis

PRG Pulse 2024 Post-Election Webinar

VIDEO

PRG Pulse 2024 Post-Election Analysis: What Happened: Policy and Politics

UPDATE

Trump Inc.: How a Second Administration Could Rewrite the Way America Does Business

MEDIA MENTIONS

Lobbyists, lawyers and strategic communications professionals from Bracewell's Policy Resolution Group break down the 2024 US election results, sharing insights for business leaders on key issues in energy, environmental, tax and trade policy.

Trump's second administration is poised to roll back Biden-era policies through executive orders and legislative action, focusing on "America-first" initiatives in energy, trade and deregulation.

President-elect Trump is expected to oversee a more hands-off, business-friendly approach to policy and regulation.

Technology

Pulse Check: Digital Assets

VIDEO

What's Next for Crypto Litigators With a Trump Administration

MEDIA MENTIONS

A second Trump presidency will have a significant impact on digital assets, from regulatory expectations to the United States' competitive edge in the global market.

A new era of cryptocurrency litigation is expected following Donald Trump's reelection.