The Texas Lawbook recently highlighted veteran tax partner Dean Hinderliter joining the firm.

Hinderliter, who is based in Dallas, is the second tax partner in Texas that Bracewell has added this year as the firm seeks to build out its capabilities to steer clients through the energy transition.

Hinderliter's 30-plus-years of experience includes advising on the tax aspects of private equity funds and their investments, mergers and acquisitions, divestitures, public offerings, tax-free reorganizations, leveraged buyouts, joint ventures and S corporations. He has "special knowledge" in the taxation of natural resources, and partnership and corporate transactions involving the petroleum industry.
