

Energy: Gaming Out Trump 2.0

Media Mentions

June 12, 2024 | Axios | 1 minute read

Frank Maisano, a senior principal in Bracewell's Policy Resolution Group, talked with Axios about the potential impact of a second Trump administration on energy and environmental policy.

Energy companies and lobbying firms are gaming out scenarios for an election that could potentially alter climate and environmental policies and regulations.

"Industry covets certainty," said Maisano. "One of the major problems with the Biden administration has been the lack of certainty because of his political tightrope walk.

Trump raises similar concerns among industry stakeholders because of his "scattershot approach" to policy, added Maisano. "Pick your poison."

Related People

Frank V. Maisano
Senior Principal
WASHINGTON, DC
+1.202.828.5864
frank.maisano@bracewell.com

Related Industries

Energy

Related Practices

Environment, Lands and Resources

Government Relations

Oil & Gas

Power

Public Lands & Resources