Prior to his becoming of counsel at the end of 2014, Edgar Marston practiced law for more than 50 years with an emphasis on asset acquisitions, business combinations, divestitures and spin-offs, securities offerings and contests for corporate control. Edgar's clients have included companies engaged in the oil and gas, cement production, computer manufacturing, telecommunications, biotech, heating and air conditioning manufacturing and retail sales businesses. During his career, Edgar left the private practice of law for eight years to serve as a senior officer and member of the board of directors for a major NYSE company. He has also been legal counsel to special committees of boards of directors and controlling stockholders in public companies.
