About Michael

Michael is a litigator with extensive experience litigating intellectual property disputes, including patent and trademark disputes in federal district court and before the USPTO, and other IP-related disputes. He also maintains a robust pro bono practice focused on assisting small businesses and microentrepreneurs with various legal issues. Michael regularly works with the Volunteers of Legal Service (VOLS) Microenterprise Project and is a member of the VOLS Pro Bono Advocates Council.

Before joining Bracewell, Michael worked at a large national law firm.
