

A Surge in Unionization and Shifting Tides at the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB)

Video

June 09, 2022 | 1 minute read

Rebecca Baker and Amy Karff Halevy take an in-depth look at the recent surge in unionization efforts and potential NLRA impacts on employers, with and without unionized workforces. This webinar discusses why employers should monitor this resurgence of the labor movement, fueled by a unique combination of Presidential objectives, a Democratic majority on the NLRB, and the impact of recent social movements and a shifting post-pandemic worker mindset. The speakers discuss the potential effects of increasing union efforts and the impact new leadership at the NLRB may have on employer policies and workplace rules.
